

Classical Guitar Concert in Midway to Take Place During August

9 Aug 1984

The stage is set for guitarists Milton Jensen and Todd Woodbury to present their popular "Every Saturday Night in August at 8:00" concerts at the Wasatch Mountain State park Visitors Center. The dates this year are the 4th, 11th, 18th, and 25th. Tickets will be available at the door for $5.00 or $10.00 per family.

The "Stage" in this case is a simple platform set before the building's floor-to-ceiling windows; Mother-Nature provides the backdrop of spectacular mountain scenery and the cool evening breezes. The room itself possesses superb acoustics for the guitar and an intimacy seldom found in the concert hall. It all adds up to a memorable musical experience.

For Jensen and Woodbury August is a time to finalize programming for their upcoming concert season. New repertoire this summer includes "Sheep May Safely Graze" and selected "Inventions" by J.S. Bach "Grand Duo" from the classical period by Napoleon Coste, and a "Suite" written for the duo by the well regarded Salt Lake composer, Stanley Funicelli. Additional works by Albeniz and Ginastera as well as solo selections will round out the program.

The Visitor Center is located near the golf course in the northwest corner of Heber Valley,

Music is an art beyond reality

Professor Jay E. Welch (BS'59) talked and played music March 29 for the Alumni Association's Women's Organization. He illustrated the art of music at the piano for such women as Pauline Judd Weggeland (BS'49), left, head of the Women's Organization, Cleone Peterson Eccles (BS'57), vice president of the Alumni Association, and Marilyn Hatch Dahlstrom (BS'56). Professor Welch said, "I believe art has to be something besides just a slice of life. You can't just take something realistic and put a frame around it and say, 'This is art.' Art has to stylize it and give it psychic distance. You have to remove it from reality."
